Gary Mennie Named Executive Chef at Livingston

Chef Gary Mennie will serve as executive chef at Livingston, the new restaurant named for turn-of-the -20th-century Atlanta mayor Livingston Mims to open across the street from The Fox Theatre in April 2009. "We are excited that Gary chose to begin the next chapter of his Atlanta culinary career at Livingston," said Matt Reidy, Fremont Realty Capital Senior Managing Director. "We believe his unique perspective, along with his revered reputation in a city known for its exceptional cuisine, will establish Livingston as one of Atlanta's premier dining destinations." Previous to his work at Livingston, Mennie received high accolades as the owner and executive chef at Taurus in Buckhead. He began his acclaimed Atlanta tenure with the opening of Canoe, garnering a Mobil Four Star rating as executive chef. A graduate of the Culinary Institute of America in Hyde Park, NY, Mennie has worked under some of the best chefs in the world, including French Master Chef Maxime Ribera, Chef Jean Francoise Meteinger, Chef Wolfgang Puck and Chef Gunter Seeger. Said Mennie, "I have always appreciated the support of this city and am glad to be able to stay in Atlanta as I take this next step in my career."
